EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations amend regulation 74 (disabilities requiring medical investigation: High Risk Offenders) of the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations 1999 (S.I. 1999/2864) (the “1999 Regulations”).

Sections 92 to 95 of the Road Traffic Act 1988 (the “1988 Act”) make provisions in relation to the physical fitness of drivers of vehicles. If an applicant for or the holder of a driving licence is suffering from certain disabilities (relevant or prospective disabilities which are prescribed under the 1988 Act) then provision is made for the licence to be refused or revoked by the Secretary of State.

Section 94 of the 1988 Act provides for obtaining information on such disabilities from a licence holder or an applicant if the Secretary of State has reasonable grounds for believing that the applicant or holder is suffering from a relevant or prospective disability or if prescribed circumstances apply to that person. Where either apply, the Secretary of State can require the applicant or holder of the licence to undergo a medical examination, to provide an authorisation for a medical practitioner to release information or to undergo a driving test.

Regulation 74 of the 1999 Regulations prescribes circumstances under section 94(4) of the 1988 Act. These circumstances relate to disqualification by court order. Where a circumstance applies to an applicant or holder of the licence then that person is a High Risk Offender. An applicant or holder of a licence who is a High Risk Offender (within the prescribed circumstances of section 94(4)) may have to pay the costs of any medical examination or authorisation since the Secretary of State is not required to do so pursuant to section 94(9) of the 1988 Act.

Regulation 2 of these Regulations amends regulation 74 by prescribing an additional circumstance – disqualification by court order under section 7A of the 1988 Act for failure, without reasonable excuse, to give permission for a laboratory test of a blood specimen.
